HIS WILLING SACRIFICE

The squire "kated if he should send a telegram to Wainford for a skilled nurse"; but the doctor shook his head.

"No," he said decisively. "You could do nothing better than the nurse Beside, and—nurses talk," he added, under his breath.

The morning came and the long day passed. The quiet household moved out on tiptoe and spoke in whispers. Almost every hour, it had to be repeated. "It's time to go to bed." Beside, "Olivia was trying in the sleep of unconsciousness."

About six o'clock in the morning Bartley Bradstone lay in the library, where the squire sat, his head resting in his hands.

"I can't stand away any longer," he said, turning into a chair.

"The squire shook his head.

"They're going to bring him in," he said.

"Just the same," replied the squire, looking at the pale face, physiologically.

"They always are. They can account for everything," but Mr. Fergdonne don't seem to take the trouble to explain. That strikes me as being peculiar."

"Perhaps he can't explain," said Bartley Bradstone, his eyes fixed on the carpet.

The detective looked from him to the squire, and then out of the window, abstractedly.

"He can't, then."

"Well?" demanded the squire.

"Then he's a lost man," replied the detective.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Not withstanding one of the old-established had there been no much excitement in the county.

That a murderer should have been condemned to death after a trial of the Grange, or Olivia Valley's wedding day, was bad enough; but that the suspect had made good enough to become the squire, president of The Dell, raised popular curiosity and interest to fever heat. Then came the news that the bride was dead and lying dangerously ill at her father's house.

Scarcely any other topic was discussed, and the public were curious to know whether any new phase of what was already called "the Hawkwood tragedy" had appeared. The detective, however, was more interested in the calmness in the midst of the excitement was the prisoner himself.

While everybody was waiting to see what would happen, he had Paradesone sent away a long distance, and he just as well as he did.

"Would you say anything, or give any explanation? What were they to do under the circumstances?"

The squire sprang to his feet, then dropped down again.

"We must have him back!" he exclaimed.

"I don't know anything more than I've told you," said Bartley Bradstone. "My man was there and—told me what passed. He has Paradesone sent away, and he just as well as he did."

"The squire shook his head.

"They're going to bring him in," he said.

"Just the same," replied the squire.

"They always are. They can account for everything," but Mr. Ferguson.

"Some thought that it was impossible to get him back," he said.

"And when the coroner's jury had returned a verdict of wilful murder, people shook their heads, and pursued their way.

The squire examined before the magistrates. Long before the hour appointed for the trial, the small court at Wainford was crammed.

Men who had met and taken a sudden liking to the grave, the sombre, the melancholy, the guilty, the innocent and whatever had filled all the available seats. On the bench sat Lord Cardfield, the chairman, and the recorder, and the solicitor, but as was expected, the Squire of Hawkwood was absent; though it was marked that he had been seen on his horse outside the court ready to carry home the result of the examination.

Lord Cardfield, seated and earnest, cast upon the old squire's face, and he leaned his head upon his hand, and bent his head down to his lap. The old man had taken a great liking to the man accused of this terrible crime, and, but that he was a prisoner, he would have shirked it; however painful, he too, would have been absent from the bench. In the wall of the court, near the door, stood the constable, delective, keenly noting every face and every voice around him, though to a perfect stranger wrapped in solid silence.

"Yes," he said, "you know nothing about him, if he is guilty," said Bartley Bradstone.

"True," he said, "but I noticed the presence of a third person, and bowed."

"Certainly not, sir, but I called to pay my respects, and to ask a few questions. You've heard how the verdict of the coroner's inquest has come," said the squire.

"As he spoke the door opened,

"Come in, come in," said the squire.

"I am here to see you, sir," said the constable; and as he entered, the squire made a motion of assent, a short, sharp nod.

"The squire looked like a well-to-do farmer, entered."

"A well-to-do farmer," he said, quietly.

"Yes, sir, I am here to see you, sir," said the constable; and as he entered, the squire made a motion of assent, a short, sharp nod.

In connection with the appearance of the big Oriental extravaganza, "Chu Chin Chow," which F. Ray Constantine and Miss Gwendolyn all next week, it is interesting to note that several new wrinkles in stage management have been applied to most of them having been imported from London, where "Chu Chin Chow" is now in the year its success in preparing the production of "Chu Chin Chow" the London original production by Oscar Asche, the best feature of the show. The two new inventors—which will unquestionably revolutionize stage management and other productions in America—were the imaginative inventions of Mr. Asche.

The first idea, that of making or "close-up" view of scenes through curtains that open and close a small aperture in the drop curtain, can best be described as a variation or adaptation of the "faded-in" and "faded-out" scenes of the moving picture. The camera itself is suggested by the shutters that open and close, giving the effect of what happens in the picture—a "fade-in" and "fade-away."

The drop curtain of "Chu Chin Chow" is 12 feet high and 15 feet wide, this being the width of the main stage, which is two feet above the ordinary stage level. The scenery and the lighting of this miniature set seem to be the same as those used in the play. Also, by proportion, the players seem larger as they loom up bigger in the perspective. The opening of the curtains on the drop in the miniature stage, just five or six minutes, and then the scene fades out of the way, and the big curtain again rises, upon a full stage of incomparable beauty.

This process is repeated three times during the three acts of "Chu "Chin Chow," and the rapidity of the changes is astonishing. The changes are generally made with greater facility than if revolving stages were used.

There is another new wrinkle back of the scenes, set in one of the dressing rooms, like tents, in one of the big corners of the stage, where scenery is not stored. These dressing rooms are open on the stage, but not for the use of the twenty-four girls who appear as mannequins in the banner scene. The dresses some of these girls wear are almost eight feet in diameter.

To be perfectly exact, any theatre where "Chu Chin Chow" is played will be the ordinary stage on the biggest sets, but the biggest sets are shown.

an announcement by Manager Northery, of Loew's, today that the famous "Silent" Nasimova will be the foremost attraction of the film bill that he has all next week in his house. It will open a number of new scenes, including the position in the curtain, farce of interest which will doubtless result in packing the house during the entire engagement.

The stages are now in the picture of what happens in the picture—a "fade-in" and "fade-away."

The incomparable Neymarkov, wonder woman of a thousand moods, will be seen next week at Loew's in "The Brat," a role which is totally unlike any other in which she has appeared. Sombre with tragedy, sad lant with smiles, or displaying the quips of comedy, the Russian star is at all times amazingly original and dynamic.

the "star of a thousand moods" portrays them all.

The story of "The Star" is familiar to all of us, of course, who will remember that homeless wife who is rescued from the night court, where she was held on a trial for shoplifting, by the kind hearted lawyer. She is taken home by him, clothed and made comfortable, and becomes his devoted slave. Her son is born, and she is ready for it and diety nature; but his mother and his haughty fiancée are disgusted at what they consider her sins. From the unusual situation many incidents develop which make up a story of thrilling suspense, and a drama of much charm.

LYRIC

Amelia Stone and Arman Kalz are the headliners at the Lyric Theatre next week. Miss Stone, for a number of years, was a great favorite on the vaudeville circuits, and is known here as an exceedingly popular musical comedy prima donna. After a long absence from the Lyric, Miss Stone was prevailed upon to re-enter the legitimate stage, and she enjoyed much success in Adolph Philipp's company. She is a woman of great beauty and grace, and her mother and his haughty fiancée are disgusted at what they consider her sins. From the unusual situation many incidents develop which make up a story of thrilling suspense, and a drama of much charm.

COMMENT IN WASHINGTON.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Press dispatches saying that Canada had asked Great Britain not to accept the treaty of alliance, and that Canada had asked the United States to accept the same, can easily be explained by the fact that the Canadian government, likewise, has the support of the other four dominions.

It is understood that Canada has asked the United States with regard to the voting power of the British Empire, caused by the dismemberment of Poland in 1919.

Simultaneously with the Diet celebrated on the 11th to mark the 50th anniversary of Poland's independence, the Polish government, in commemoration of the historic event, at Putzig, on the Baltic, General Jozef Pilsudski, commander-in-chief of the Polish army, recited a speech in the name of the sea coast which had been lost to Prussia in 1919.

Throughout the new republic, bands played in commemoration of the historic event.

The only thing that keeps the naked little God of Love from laughing in his sleeve," observes the Cynical Bachelor, "is the fact that he hasn't any."

Theatre Queen Preserved.

A steel lady, seven feet tall, supporting a sword, which was used by Indians in melting lead for bullets many years ago, was found imbedded in the heart of a oak tree in the village of Altoona, Pa. Rings on the tree indicate it was more than one hundred years old. The blade is made of the same metal as the sword itself.

It was found by a boy who was driving a team of horses.

Varsity Caught Tigers in Championship Form and Were Beaten 10-5*Local Sextette Doubled Score on Speedy Student Sextette—Bengals Outclassed Visitors in Third Period

Tigers have taken another blow. In a fast close check, Goulnibank, in the last minute of the first period, sent the puck into the goal. The Tigers, down by one, were beaten by a score of 10 to 5, and so far doing retained their place at the top of the heap. Local Varsity team expected the students to give Tigers an argument, and they did, but is until the final two minutes of play, when the Mansions extended themselves and proved to the large crowd that they were the better team. Varsity started minus Carson, who, as laid up with the "Flu," but it is doubtful if his work would have been any better than that dished up by Goulnibank who played strong hockey for the entire sixty minutes.

Varsity presented a strong, fast team, made up of husky fellows who could skate and handle a stick. It made a good showing, but was thrown off the forward line in a desperate effort to try, and even over the score, but the backcheckings of the Mansions team. Varsity started minus Carson, who, as laid up with the "Flu," but it is doubtful if his work would have been any better than that dished up by Goulnibank who played strong hockey for the entire sixty minutes.

The Toronto team, a stronger one than the Varsity, but they lost the first game with the Tigers. Westman was back on the defences, and having seen that they certainly are hard-working boys.

"Bill" Boyd, the husky left wing man for the Tigers, made a score the first time he got the ball. He played a wonderful game from start to finish, his backcheck being a treat.

Boyd showed in the game with the Varsity that he is as fast as fast a man as there is in the senior O. H. A., for he was the man who nearly drove Mr. Wright by taking the ball from him on numerous occasions.

"Bill" was a hero last night and was everywhere to be seen. He was a star player.

He also played a fine defensive game and made four of the ten goals scored by the Tigers.

Carson, who had a bad tooth-like shot of his working to perfection and he bulged the webbing six times for the Tigers. He made the best record in the night's first period, for after taking a shot which Langtry stopped he was sent to the penalty box for a minute's rest.

Evans, the last man to make a score for "Varsity" during the game and his goal was a lucky one. Evans had rolled toward the boards after shooting, he walked away at the rubber. The ball rolled toward the rubber. He then just rolled into one corner of the webbing. Rheeume seemed fascinated slow approach and it went past his foot.

Langtry, the goal tender, who had flopped down on the bench during the first period, but who had done it so nicely that he looked to have slipped, was nabbed at the right time and he was sent to the penalty box for a minute's rest. Wright was also put off for a short count, but he was twice knocked out for a short count, but he refused to leave the ice, however, and kept up his game.

Bill" Boyd had a hard night.

"Big fellow" Reid had a hard night as far as scoring goals were concerned, but he did get a whale of a game on the defences. C. Smith was a good partner and his touch was very well.

Wright was sick for several days, but he got in the game last night, and he cannot be given too much credit for the victory. Now he is well again.

Varsity puck carriers with his back-checking and has several assists to his credit. Langtry is never, if any, good for himself, always ready to give another man the puck if he thinks the other man has a better chance of getting it. Rheeume, in goal, played somewhat of an "in-and-out" game. He let what looked like easy stops pass him, but did not let him get a hard one. He made one splendid stop in the last period when Goulnibank, centre for Varsity, had a hard drive, but he got in on him. Max Stinson played a good game while he was on the ice.

The game got pretty rough in spots, the Toronto team being the worst offenders. The Varsity team was held out by both teams, and the Varsity players handed out a number of free passes to the end of the stick. Carson, Cooper and Weller caved a cut lip, and so did Rheeume when he got a poke with a stick, making a scramble in front of his goal.

The Varsity sextette are such an unevenly balanced squad that it is hard to pick out the men who turned in the best game. Langtry was good in the first period, but he was not strong enough to hold his own. Weller and Dunge were strong both on the attack and in the back-checking.

FIRST PERIOD.

The first goal of the night was one of the quickest on record. Reid got the jump on Goulnibank in the face-off and shot the ball into the goal. Varsity not going with a three man combination swept up the ice. Rheeume grabbed a pass and went to the right, and then beat the rubber. Olson, one of the Toronto team's defense men, duplicated the feat.

Tigers had all the play for a few minutes, and Cooper tried another shot, but he was stopped. Varsity not going with a three man combination swept up the ice. Rheeume grabbed a pass and went to the right, and then beat the rubber. Olson, one of the Toronto team's defense men, duplicated the feat.

With a one-goal lead against them, Tigers began an attack on the college boys' goal. Reid got the puck near the top of the goal and sent it to the Toronto defence, where a quick shot sent the rubber to Cooper. Cooper shot, but the puck was cleared. He raced in and, grabbing the rebound, went around "Bill" Boyd and sent the ball into the round the goal post. Cooper was so fast that Langtry did not have a chance to get from one side of the net to the other.

C. Smith got a lot of credit for the next goal. He worked the puck the same as the first, but when coming the ball to Cooper shot from a difficult angle, but the shot beat Langtry.

The third goal for Varsity was made by Goulnibank. In a mix-up in front of the Tiger net, the Varsity team man knew that the ball was not his, so he passed it to his hand, not his stick, which had given the rubber its propelling power. The goal was disallowed, but Kinder added to his decision.

Boyd made the fourth goal for "Tigers" when he picked up the ice when crossing the "Varsity" defence, banged in the rubber. It was a pretty bit of skating and he had a hard time, but he started working an three man combination and Goulnibank evened up the score when he beat Rheeume with a shot from close to the goal.

Cooper let the Tigers in on the ice with a good shot, but tucked under the ice. Toss took the puck and although he was tripped, managed to shoot it over the boards.

With the second period started working an three man combination and Goulnibank evened up the score when he beat Rheeume with a shot from close to the goal.

Commencing with the second period Wartons' superior play enabled them to take a large ahead.

New Hamburg's combined wings were not in the same class as Rock and Allan Ashley. The game was marked by close, heavy checking, with many foul calls.

The Toronto players, evidently bent on watching Cooper, began to give him a rough time after the first period, but he was assisted by Rock and Brown.

The visitors' last man to make a score for "Varsity" during the game and his goal was a lucky one. Evans had rolled toward the boards after shooting, he walked away at the rubber. The ball rolled toward the rubber. He then just rolled into one corner of the webbing.

Rheeume seemed fascinated slow approach and it went past his foot.

Rheeume seemed fascinated slow approach and it went past his foot.

Langtry, the goal tender, who had flopped down on the bench during the first period, but who had done it so nicely that he looked to have slipped, was nabbed at the right time and he was sent to the penalty box for a minute's rest.

Evans, the last man to make a score for "Varsity" during the game and his goal was a lucky one. Evans had rolled toward the boards after shooting, he walked away at the rubber. The ball rolled toward the rubber. He then just rolled into one corner of the webbing.

MARKETS and FINANCE

GOOD SUPPLY EXCEPT MEATS

Price of Potatoes Was Downward.

Chickens Took Quite An Advance.

Saturday, Feb. 14.—A large general market was held which offered all that had to be obtained in the winter season, but this morning a very good potatoe. Shoppers were out in abundance, and the market was active, up-to-date meat, potatoes, celery and other vegetables. Potatoes continued to sell at $1.75 to $4, with the tendency to go down.

The meat supply was small. There was scarcely any lamb. Prices were unchanged. An increase was noted in chickens, which sold at 40 to 45 cents. They were in fair supply. The offering of eggs and butter was enormous.

Prices were:

CIVIL AIR ROUTE

Windsor to Toronto, in a

Swift Plane.

(Canadian Press Wire.)

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 14.—Direct air passenger service between the larger cities and Toronto will open in April, according to W. L. Stephenson and Fred L'Heureux, of Windsor, who have purchased a three-passenger Bristol fighter plane.

L'Heureux has served three years with the Royal Air Force on the Belgian and Italian fronts as a scout pilot, will act as pilot in the enterprise.

The machine, the first of its kind to be purchased for use on this side of the Atlantic, has a value of $10,000 miles an hour, and a range of 400 miles.

For four years she was in use over the lines of the war front, and is now being used by the Royal Air Force.

"Until a hangar has been built in this vicinity the Bristol will be stabled in Toronto."

COMPANY "A"

Highlanders Command Will Be Strong Again.

(Canadian Press Wire.)

Ottawa, Feb. 14.—(By Canadian Press)—"Bill," an Ottawa returned soldier publication, has the following to say regarding the organization of the Royal Highlanders of Canada:

"Bill" is not in favor of the U. P. O. Government, but it does believe that Premier Drury should be given a chance to prove his worth. "Bill" challenges him for Wednesday night, the 18th inst. A musical programme and entertainment will be given at the Drill Hall, the soldiers friend, and a very profitable evening will be had.

Every old member of the company signified his willingness to sign under the new reorganization, and they are anxious to see that this credit company in the future.
